Announcements/Chair's Report (Levin): We have three catalog items going to Faculty Senate today.

New Business

- Discuss Distinction between a department and a school and define unit leader.
 - Schools are led by Directors and Department/Free-standing programs are led by Chairs who are also voting faculty
 - Policy passed last year allowed unit leaders of schools to be called chairs (and maintain voting faculty rights) provided they are not on full-time administrative reassignment.
 - President Feinstein requested clarifications of a school, department and unit.
 - University Regulations' Part 11: Exempt Administration with Faculty Rank, section 33-1101 School Director Policy.
 - Some concerns expressed over losing flexibility since current definitions are somewhat vague.
 - What about people with multiple roles? Ginny Wong was mentioned as an example of someone who is currently associate dean and director of UNC's School of Teacher Education.
 - Currently all schools are led by directors program areas (definition currently includes multidisciplinary, single disciplinary, interdisciplinary) and departments are led by chairs
 - Levin commented UNC Math Sciences is a good example of a multidisciplinary unit that functions as one program area.
 - Should a department and school be defined the same
 - The committee reviewed University Regulations, Part 3: Academic Rank and Titles 3-301, Chair Selection and Evaluation. A chair is the unit leader of a department or free-standing program, or the unit leader of a school whose faculty workload includes instruction and/or professional activity in addition to chair service."
 - Currently, UNC's free-standing programs have faculty on split appointments.
 - Identified a need to define paths to becoming a school program, department, etc.
 - Chair Levin to bring a definition of school and department that are basically identical the next APC meeting
- Recommended Policy for Canvas Shell (UIGC):
 - Welsh gave background on UNC's Fall 2020 student survey, which revealed major issues students experienced while using the Canvas Shell.
 - Welsh reviewed key points of Canvas Shell policy proposal. This policy will only be applied to scheduled courses.
 - Suggestion: "Learning Management System be used instead of Canvas Shell"
 - "Faculty actively using the gradebook should be its own bullet point since it will be a requirement of faculty.
 - The intention is that this policy would be placed in the Board Policy under "teaching requirements."
 - Concern was expressed over encroaching on faculty's academic freedom and individual instructional style.
 - Chair Levin requested Chair Welsh and he work on slimmed down version of recommended policy language for Learning Management System bring back to APC
- University Closure during Final's Week policy Not discussed

Comments to the Good of the Order None.
